

Open Residential

Population Served

Cleveland Christian Home's (CCH) Open Residential Treatment has the capacity to serve 20 males, ages 6-17, with severe behavioral and emotional illnesses.

Most of those referred to our program have a history of severe abuse or neglect, and unruly behavior and/or delinquency problems, and come to us from their own home, foster care, other residential centers or psychiatric hospitals.

During placement, our residents develop coping skills and learn to use self-control to change unacceptable behaviors and to grow psychologically and emotionally.

Our Program

It's never easy for parents and loved ones to accept that their child may need help beyond what they are able to provide. The years between childhood and young adulthood can be a tough time for most youth, with children experiencing all kinds of physical, emotional, and social changes. CCH is here to help. CCH's primary goal is to help our residents develop the skills necessary to function well in a family environment and in the community.

We are a comprehensive treatment program, treating mental health issues such as post-traumatic stress disorder, attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), depression, and oppositional defiant disorder. Our services include diagnostic assessment and individual, family, and group therapies. We also provide educational, psychiatric and medical services.

CCH utilizes evidence-based and culturally competent treatment approaches that facilitate the social, emotional, and intellectual growth of our residents that enable them to return to a family setting or a less restrictive alternative.
